Dear Gary:

I was distressed to learn of your recent difficulty. I pray that God has richly blessed both you and your wife through this special time of need. I appreciated the check you enclosed with your letter but hope it has not put you in any financial strain.

I do know of a church that you might be interested in in Cookeville, Tennessee. The Collegeside church is looking for a preacher. It is the church near the campus of Tennessee Tech and would provide a great opportunity for ministry, both for resident members and to college students. I would urge you to write Mr. David Maddox, Collegeside Church of Christ, 9th Street, Cookeville, Tennessee, 38501. You might suggest my name when you write as a reference, and you should do this immediately. You could also mention Jere Hargrove's name since Cookeville is his home town.

I will continue to keep my eyes open for opportunities that might arise. I am so concerned for you and appreciate so much the deep faith which your note revealed. I will pray God's continued blessing on you and use of you.

Your brother,

John Allen Chalk

Dear John Allen,

Thank you so much for sending Gary the book. He has enjoyed and appreciated it so much.

Gary has really gotten a bad deal up here, and he is now working in a men's shop temporarily until he can obtain another preaching position. This church business has really been a hard blow to him, but in spite of that, I believe we loved our work too much to give it up completely. We were in the process of finding another position when this happened, but we can't afford to do anymore travelling. If you know of any good openings down your way please let us know.

Thank you so much, and May God keep You and Yours.

Always for Him,
Hope Kinnally
